

AI Website Builder

From a description of your business to a site that is live

What this service does

Describe your business in plain language and the builder drafts a real site: structure, written copy and a visual theme. Not a template with placeholder text in it.

You then edit it, and publish it onto real hosting.

Writing a description worth drafting from

The draft is only as specific as what you give it. "A bakery" produces a generic bakery. "A family bakery in Langley doing sourdough and custom cakes, open Tuesday to Saturday, mostly local repeat customers" produces something you can actually use.

Say what you sell, who buys it, and what makes people choose you. Mention the tone you want.

Editing

Two ways, and they work on the same site:

- Drag and drop sections directly, the way you would expect an editor to work.
- Or describe the change: make the header darker, add a testimonials section, rewrite the about page to be shorter. It applies that change to the existing page rather than regenerating everything.

Your own edits are not thrown away by a later AI change.

Publishing

Publishing puts the site onto real hosting. If you already have a hosting service with us, it publishes there; if not, you will need one first.

Nothing goes live until you publish it. The builder drafts and previews; it does not publish behind your back.

What to check before you publish

The AI writes a draft, and a draft is not finished work. Read it as though a new employee had written it.

- Every price, phone number, address and opening time. These are the things worth being certain about.
- Any claim about your business. If it is not true, change it.
- The tone. It should sound like you.

HostCommerceAI - questions about anything in this guide are worth a support ticket. This document describes the service as it works today; if something here does not match what you are seeing, tell us, because one of the two is wrong.
